A Deadly Wandering

A Deadly Wandering follows Reggie Shaw from the moment of the tragedy, through the police investigation, the state’s groundbreaking prosecution, and ultimately, Reggies anorexic admission of responsibility. Richtel parallels Reggies journey with leading-edge scientific findings on the impact technology has on our brains, showing how these devices play to our deepest social instincts.

A Deadly Wandering: A Mystery, a Landmark Investigation, and the Astonishing Science of Attention in the Digital Age is a 2014 book by Matt Richtel. It details the story of Reggie Shaw, a Mormon teenager who killed two scientists in Utah in 2006 while he was texting and driving. Richtel also reports scientific studies on human attention interspersed with the narrative.

A Deadly Wanding is a 2014 nonfiction book by Matt Richtel, a journalist at The New York Times. After winning a Pulitzer Prize in 2010 for a series of articles detailing the dangers of distracted driving, Richtel expanded his research and reporting into a Deadly Wandering. This nonfiction book combines the story of a 2006 Utah car accident—in which Mormon teenager Reggie Shaw killed two scientists, James Furfori and Keith O’Dell, while texting and driving—and the science of attention...
